

ARC463

ARCHITECTURE FOR SOCIAL CHANGE

MEF / FADA

Fall 2025-2026

Thursday-14:00-17:00_Online

Instructor H. Güher Tan, PhD
guhergurcan@gmail.com

Schoolchildren watch labourers construct a new estate of prefabricated houses in Watford, Hertfordshire, 1946.
Photograph: Keystone Features/Getty

This course aims to critically examine the relationship between architecture, politics, and society across historical and contemporary contexts. By engaging with theories, case studies, and design practices, students will explore how spatial environments both reflect and shape power relations, crises, social movements, and ecological challenges.